Says He Found Situation Where Allies Were About to Force Agreement.

By the Associated Press. GENOA, April 18. - Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German foreign minister, declared to the Associated Press tonight that the German delegation came to the Genoa conference with the best intentions in the world, but found itself confronted with a situation where the allies were about to force Germany to accept an agreement between them and Russia without even consulting Germany, whose most vital interests were at stake. "I have been toid" he said, "that our arrangement with Russia has caused great surprise. The negotiacaused great surprise. The hegodal the frankest terms their opinion that the conclusion of such an agreement the conclusion of such an agreement they have been proceeding for two months and were practically concluded as they now stand a fortnight ago. I have heard no criticism regarding the contents of that arrangement, but of the proceedings.

"Another criticism is that we have been treating with one single nation while assembled here in a European conference. To that of the conference. while assembled here in a European conference. This has been done in all conferences, but in our case we did not leave the conference table; it was the allies who treated first with Russia privately. Still we never complained, although the negotiations between the allies and Russia did not take little assemble our interests. take into account our interests.

Left Out of Program. "The report of the allied experts who met at London was about to be approved with some modification, thus establishing a vast program of European policy which would have given advantages to all countries except

So I do not understand this surprise.

Followed Spirit, He Says.

"I was thankful to all who brought us here together, especially Mr. Lloyd George. We followed the spirit of the conference by concluding the first real peace treaty based on reciprocal concessions, on the waiving of all reciprocal claims and agreeing on reciprocal reconstruction. "In the report of the allied experts we especially objected to reference to article 116 of the treaty of Vertinued, "but it interferes with the we especially objected to reference to article 116 of the treaty of Versailles, which would have maintained against us Russian claims which Russia was ready to give up. Our treaty was signed Easter Sunday because it was the last moment possible to do so.

"I might have signed it before leaving Germany, but I desired to come here with my hands free. When, however, I saw that the allies were trying to make arrangements with Russia without even consulting us, then I decided to sign it here. On Friday last I was semi-officially informed that an agreement between the allies and Russia was about to be concluded. As the communication As the communication mas made in such a way as to lead me to consider it official, two days later I signed the treaty."

At the end of his declaration Dr. Rathenau was asked whether he did not consider that Germany, in concluding a treaty in which the Russian debts are condoned, had by this mere fact violated the Cannes resolution, which implicitly stipulates recognition of war debts by Russia. Dr. Rathenau promptly replied: "By accepting condonation of her debts, Russia implicitly admitted them."

to Change. The All States' Society, composed

Herbert W. Rutledge, president of the society, was in the chair when 🦻 the delegates of the various state societies were called to order. Discussion of the change of the name of the society occupied the greater portion of the meeting. Several names were suggested and a vote of the delegates resulted in the decision in favor of the Association of State Societies. The change was considered necessary because of the existence of a society having the same property of the same property having the same property

Representatives of several state so of the Washington cieties heretofore not affiliated with the association were present and exhotel managers and pressed their intention of having Chapter, Greeters of America, an organization of hotel managers and clerks, were made at the semi-monthly meeting of the chapter in the Franklin Square Hotel last night. The dance will be held in the Raleigh Hotel Monday night and is for the benefit of the Greeters' national home at Denver, Col., and for a clubhouse in Washington.

The Walter Reed Melody Boys and another orchestra will provide music for the occasion and a vaudeville program headed by the Groom Prothers. J. G. Harper, chairman of the dance committee, announced last night that 500 tiekets have been distributed and are on sale at the leading hotels at

Parents' League Takes Up School

Opposition to secret sessions of the board of education, either of the com-mittee of the whole or in special committee, was voiced in a readopted by the Parents' Lear adopted by the Parents' League at a meeting last night. The resolution also declared that no citizen should be denied the right to speak at any meeting of the school board.
